RESERVE YOUR PRICES REALIZED $1.00

TERMS OF SALE

1. All items listed in this catalogue are guaranteed genuine.
2. Auction sale is not an approval Sale since we guarantee each lot to be genuine and as described, all claims to the contrary must be made within 3 days of delivery, and no lots are to be returned without permission.
3. All sales are strictly for cash and must be paid for in U.S. funds. No merchandise will be shipped or delivered until payment is received in full.
4. Those who have not previously established credit must remit 10% deposit or satisfactory reference in advance.
5. Postage, insurance and Penna. Sales Tax will be added to all invoices where applicable.
6. The highest bidder shall be the buyer. In the event of dispute between bidders, the Auctioneer shall decide the purchaser, or place the lot in question up for bid a second time. When identical bids are submitted by mail, preference shall be given to the earliest bid received.
7. Bid sheets must be signed by the bidder. No bids will be accepted from minors.

TO MAIL BIDDERS

Please send your bids in Early. Earliest bidder will be given preference. Unreasonably low bidders will not receive our next Auction Catalogue. Such bidding is a waste of time and money.

Thank you,

1307 CHANCELLERSVILLE. Autograph manuscript of Civil War general JOHN C. TIDBALL, about 100 pages, concerning the Battle of Chancellersville. Written for publication, but never published. Many exciting encounters are mentioned as well as TIDBALL's opinion of various military and political leaders.

"Whatever may be said of Hooker in other respects he was certainly most successful in bringing the Army of the Potomac up to a high degree of efficiency. ...During March he was visited by the President who, with Mrs. Lincoln, spent several days at his headquarters camp, and (witnessed) a grand review of the whole army, or so much of it as was available from picket and other absolutely necessary duty. About 100,000 men passed in review, requiring parts of three days, marching in mass, or with as slight distance as practicable. ...The cavalry raid that Hooker now projected had for its object the interruption of the enemy's communication with Richmond, thus isolating him from his supplies, checking his retreat, and inflicting on him every possible injury which will tend to his discomfiture and defeat. Hooker was so confident of defeating Lee that, continuing his instructions, he directed the cavalry command to rejoin him in the vicinity of Richmond.

"Culpeper was one of the old aristocratic towns of Virginia. None but the old and decrepid, or the very young were now left in it. A large part of the population were blacks, ragged and hungry looking. All were greatly excited over our sudden appearance among them, and the women, despite their aristocratic pretentions, were venomous both in looks and speech towards us."

There follows many colorful accounts of the fighting. TIDBALL relates how Hooker created scapegoats whom he could blame for his failure.

In discussing Hooker's removal, TIDBALL states "It was almost a dead certainty that whoever should come out of the war as the most successful general would have the disposal of the next presidency. The politicians were more intent on this than upon the war. Secretary Chase had a large following intriguing against Lincoln. Often factions were in the field to all of whom it was apparent that a successful general would down them all, unless, perchance, he should be of such small calibre as to be easily overcome in politics, or one willing to rest on his laurels as a conquerer and have no political aspirations."

Fascinating account of military and political operations in 1863. A choice archive for research.

1310 CIVIL WAR. 80 page manuscript entitled "Seven days Battles." Written by Civil War general JOHN C. TIDBALL for publication, but never actually published. Dealing with the summer of 1862 in Virginia.

"General Lee was there commanding in person. His troops approached by two roads uniting about half a mile in front of Porter's line."

TIDBALL relates that after the battle, "In rear of the tail of the column marched a troop of the 6th Pennsylvania cavalry, better known at that time as Rush's Lancers ... It was the duty of this troop to hurry up all stragglers. The regiment was a crack one, coming from Philadelphia and numbering in its organization many who were of the blue blood of that aristocratic city. As it was armed with lances it was entirely useless for combative purposes and was therefore employed for fancy duty in which the men, dashing about on their fine horses, carrying their long lances with the gay pennants attached, attracted much attention and sometimes a little ridicule.

Many colorful battles related.

1311 CIVIL WAR. Important manuscript in the hand of Civil War general JOHN C. TIDBALL concerning the "War Period / 1862" with emphasis on the relations between Lincoln and McClellan. About 75 pages in well written and exciting script. Intended for publication, but never published. TIDBALL, who was cited for gallantry during various battles, was breveted major general and was close to Sherman, McClellan, Porter and other generals of the war. TIDBALL has taken McClellan's cause in all his writings and scarcely hides his distaste for Stanton and the political leaders of the Lincoln administration. "Stanton had no words of kindness; on the contrary he kept up his querrelous spitefulness."

There is a detailed account of the differences between Lincoln and McClellan on military and civil policy. "To the soldiers McClellen was possibly less a hero than before, but he was more a martial leader than ever. A tremendous howl was raised against him throughout the land by a certain class of people, and nothing was too bad to say of him. He had done nothing, worse than nothing with his magnificent army, and even the army itself was demeaned for its loyalty to its leader. Not a word of commendation or sympathy reached it from the War Department. All this had the effect of making it stick only the closer to its leader."

Also exciting accounts of battle activities in Virginia in 1862. Interesting accounts of McClellan, "Jeb" Stuart, Longstreet, Lee and others.

1324 EMANCIPATION PROCLAMATION. The first official War Department printing of this great historic document. "General Orders, / No. 139./ War Department,/ Adjutant General's Office / Washington. Sept. 24, 1862./ The following Proclamation by the President is published for the information and government of the Army and all concerned:/ BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA. / A PROCLAMATION./ I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States of America, and Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy thereof, do hereby/proclaim ..../ That on the first day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty three, all persons held as slaves within any State or designated part of a State ... shall be then, thenceforward, and forever free .... / Done at the city of Washington, this twenty second day of September ... one thousand eight hundred and sixty two ... / Abraham Lincoln./ By the President:/ William H. Seward, Secretary of State./ By Order of the Secretary of War:/L. Thomas,/ Adjutant General./ Official:/ (blank)/ Assistant Adjutant General."

More than three months before the final Emancipation Proclamation became effective (Jan. 1, 1863), Lincoln called his cabinet to meeting (Sept. 22, 1862) and announced his intentions, which were approved and then made public.

Two days later (Sept. 24, 1862), was issued as a separate printing to the army, this broadsheet (19 cm by 25 cm), folded once to three printed pages, giving the preliminary proclamation of emancipation.

This was sent to all the commanders in the field, alerting them to preparations for enforcement of what was destined to become the most famous document in American history since the Declaration of Independence.

This particular General Order was received in the field by the "Commanding General Second Army Corps". It was found in a bundle of orders received by him from August through December, 1862 - which he had crudely stitched together with twine and improvised wrappers. Aside from four small punch holes where the stitches came through, the condition is extraordinarily good. Of course, the two pages have separated at the original fold, but this does not affect the text (there are ample margins) of the overall presentability of the broadsheet. The provenance is established by manuscript notations to be found on some of the other orders.

The scholarly world has generally accepted three documents as having the greatest historical impact in the English-speaking panorama: The MAGNA CHARTA; the DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE; and The EMANCIPATION PROCLAMATION. The latter two added to the U.S. CONSTITUTION are generally conceded to be the greatest American documents. It is noteworthy that all three of these "American Scriptures" were found in their original broadside appearances, in the Philadelphia area and all three were offered at auction in 1969.

Historic and significant!

1325 EMANCIPATION PROCLAMATION. The first newspaper appearance of the complete preliminary Emancipation Proclamation! Group includes three copies of the semi-weekly NEW YORK TRIBUNE. September 23, 1862; August 22, 1862; and September 26, 1862. 8 pages each (approx. 18" x 21"), printed on one huge elephant folio sheet and then folded to form 8 printed pages. In superb condition, with folds uncut.

The "Semi-Weekly" was published and edited by Horace Greeley and was intended to encompass the national scene and the war news - and is therefore not to be confused with the "DAILY TRIBUNE" which catered to a more local element. The "Semi-Weekly" is comparatively rare.

That the TRIBUNE presents the most poignant contemporary account of the Emancipation Proclamation is unquestioned. The "Greeley faction" pursued Lincoln endlessly from the beginning of the war, through the press, pulpit and platform to abolish slavery. Finally, Greeley, irritated by Lincoln's procrastination and inaction, attacked the President in an article entitled, "The Prayer of Twenty Millions". Two columns bristling with bitter complaints. This article is contained in the August 22nd TRIBUNE. Lincoln's answer to Greeley is one of the classics of the war, famous for its clarity and vigor, commencing thus: "My paramount object in this struggle is to save the Union, and is not either to save or destroy slavery ..."

The issue of September 23, 1864 prints the proclamation in full. Because the President presented it to his cabinet only the day before, it can be assumed that Greeley received advance information (perhaps from Lincoln himself) as the coverage, editorially and otherwise is much more comprehensive than in any other newspaper in the country (with the exception of the NEW YORK TIMES). From the overall tone of most of the editorials in both the issue of Sept. 23 and the subsequent issue of Sept. 26, it is easily discernable that Greeley wrote most of the material himself. The issue of Sept. 26th reports the furore, excitement and enthusiasm occasioned by the Emancipation Proclamation as no other contemporary account could.

This is a most significant chronicle (from the original sources) of the many-sided perspectives of this great event.

1328 FRANKLIN, BENJAMIN. American patriot. Two autograph manuscript poems: "British Muse" and "Rural Felicity". Written on 2 pp., small 4to, about 280 words. Unsigned. Slightly stained; break in center fold. Circa 1751. Also a 1945 Parke-Bernet catalog of the John Gribbel Collection in which these poems are cataloged. On one sheet of paper, both sides.

The poem "The British Muse" comprises two 8-line stanzas, the first reads:

"O could the various force of Sound
Point out a Lover's an guish
Then would the notes with life resound
Then would they sweetly languish.
Well may the sprightly fife declare
Hope, and the softer lute despair
Now let the Notes with life rebound
Now let them sweetly languish".

The poem "Rural Felicity" comprises three 7-line stanzas, the first stanza reads:

"Come haste to the wedding ye friends and ye neighbors
The lovers no longer their bliss can delay
Forget all yr. sorrows, yr. cares and yr. labours
And let every heart beat with rapture today
Ye voltaries all attend to my call
Come revet in pleasure which never can cloy
Come see rural felicity which love and innocence ever enjoy".

These drinking songs were apparently written by FRANKLIN, and is entirely in his hand. Handsomely framed showing both sides and two fine FRANKLIN engravings. Choice and very desireable for display. $1250.00

Sent by MORGENTHAU, as Chairman of the United Jewish Appeal asking him to continue his support because "You are one of those whose contributions total about 80% of all the money raised by the United Jewish Appeal".
The desperate beginnings of Israel are reflected in this poignant letter. He states he is sending Annenberg a batch of photos just received from Israel which are "so compelling ... better than a thousand words in describing some of the critical problems ... When I visited Israel some months ago, the housing problem for the newcomers was critical. Today, as you can see for yourself, the situation is desperate. How can we say to the Jews in the D.P. camps and the many thousands in Eastern Europe and North Africa that they cannot enter the Jewish homeland because there is no housing for them?"

1401 (SECOND BATTLE OF BULL RUN) Manuscript, about 100 pages, in the hand of Civil War general JOHN C. TIDBALL entitled "Second Bull Run Campaign." Exciting account of this Union victory by a one-time commandant of West Point and early U.S. military commander in Alaska. Written for publication, but was never actually published. The campaign is viewed by a ranking field officer who was breveted a major general after Petersburg. His insights into strategy and the personalities of the commanding generals is enlightening and perceptive.

"General Pope, it will be remembered, had been brought from the West to take command of the troops which under Fremont, Banks and McDowell had cut such an inglorious figure against Stonewall Jackson during the raid of the latter in the Valley of Virginia. These three corps when united were called the Army of Virginia. Pope, assuming command on June 27th, found his troops very much scattered. ... One of the first things done by Pope after assuming command was to issue an address to his troops in which, among other things he says: 'Let us understand each other, I have come to you from the West, where we have always seen the backs of our enemies; from an army whose business it has been to seek the advessary, and to beat him when found; whose policy has been attack not defense ... I presume that I have been called here to pursue the same system and to lead you against the enemy. It is my purpose to do so ... Meanwhile I desire you to dismiss from your minds certain phrases, which I am sorry to find so much in vogue amongst you. I hear constantly of "taking up strong positions and holding them," of "lines of retreat" and "bases of supplies." Let us discard such ideas. The strongest position a soldier should desire to occupy is one from which he can most easily advance against the enemy. Let us study the probable links of retreat of our opponents, and leave our own to take care of themselves. Let us look before us and not behind. Success and glory are in the advance, disaster and shame lurk in the rear. ...' Among many good people of the North this Napoleonic address had the genuine ring about it. It was thought that the right general for the right place had at last been found for the capture of Richmond and the rout of the whole rebel crew."

TIDBALL gives an exciting account of the Second Battle of Bull Run which brought such greats as Lee, Jackson, Stuart, Longstreet, Hill and Ewell crashing down on the reorganized Union forces. TIDBALL is quite partisan in his support of generals McClellan and Porter against the failures of Pope. He devotes much space to the court-marshal of Porter and the later clearing of his name.

TIDBALL then relates a strange incident between Lincoln and McClellan (soon to be political enemies). "Next morning, that is Sept. 2nd. while at breakfast McClellan received a call from President Lincoln accompanied by General Halleck. The former said that Pope's army was falling back on Washington totally defeated and in confusion. He then said that he regarded the city as lost and asked McClellan if he would, under the circumstances, consent to accept command of all the forces. To this appeal McClellan at once gave most hearty assent, stating that he would save the city, to which hopeful view both the President and Halleck expressed their doubts."

A truely fine archive relating, in a well written script, one general's views and experiences during the early, difficult days of the Civil War.

1422 (U.S. NAVY) Commodore JOHN RODGERS' copy of Commodore David Porter's booklet concerning the Foxardo Expedition. Certainly one of the most important and interesting archives in the history of the U.S. Navy, combining in one document two great War of 1812 heroes and considered to be two of the pioneer founders of our Navy.

"An Exposition / of the / Facts and Circumstances / which justified the / EXPEDITION TO FOXARDO, / and / The Consequences Thereof / Together With the Proceedings / of the / Court of Inquiry Thereon, / held by the order of / the Hon. Secretary of the Navy. / By D. PORTER / de hoc multi molta ... / Washington/ Printed by Davis & Force / 1825. " 8 vo pamphlet. 24 pages, uncut. Very fine copy. On the front wrapper is the following autographic inscription: Com. JNO. RODGERS Command. U.S. Squadron Mediterranean."

The Foxardo Incident occasioned Porter's recall and court marshal. He resigned from the Navy and joined the service of Mexico. This extremely rare pamphlet is Comm. Porter's complete personal account of the incident at Foxardo. With the RODGERS' association, it becomes one of the most significant and unique early naval documents.

1428 (WESTERN AMERICANNA) 150 page manuscript in the hand of Civil War general JOHN C. TIDBALL, onetime commandant of West Point. Written for publication, but never published. Exciting, humorous, and colorful is this account of military operations in the West in the 1850's. TIDBALL was breveted major general during the Civil War and was an early military commander in Alaska. Related is a long journey to New Mexico after it became a territory and the new civilian government that accompanied this military expedition. The hardships and lighter moments of these travels makes a fascinating commentary. TIDBALL describes the professional (and amateur) buffalo hunters that depleted the great herds. There are colorful passages relating to the wildlife of the plains. Their journey took them across the old Santa Fe trail and the route of Zebulon Pike.

This was written by TIDBALL later in life and is in choice condition. He is a very fine writer and his eye took in all the sights of the western plains. TIDBALL mentions companions who later achieved some fame in the Civil War. There are interesting accounts of contacts with the Indians.

"The general, who being bâld and wore a wig, took the latter off to air and cool his head. This caused great surprise to pass around a circle of Indians who, squatting on the ground, surrounded the group of officers. They evidently did not comprehend this method of "lifting" the scalp-lock. Their wonderment was still further increased when another officer, rubbing his face apparently in a careless manner, removed an eye, an artificial one which he used as a substitute for one he had lost from the effects of a wound inflicted by an arrow. Still further went the wonder round when another of our party removed some front teeth, grinned a diabolical leer at the dusty warriors, who now began to think the white men were sorely in league with evil spirits. This notion was confirmed when the old captain, fumbling about his artificial leg, unstrapped it and tossed it into his tent. The astonishment of the savages now turned to superstitious fear, and hastily gathering themselves up, walked away, casting furtive glances back over their shoulders as though fearful that the evil spirit of the white man might fall upon them and cause them to drop into pieces."

1760 * * UNIQUE FEDERAL RESERVE * *
Sample or Specimen Notes
Series of 1914-1918
(SEE FRONT INSIDE COVER)

Denominations: $5.00-$10.00-$20.00-$50.00-$100.00-$500.00-$1000.00-$5000.00-$10,000.00

It is with great pride that we offer for sale this exciting lot of exquisite notes, which was indeed, the piece-de-resistance of the entire Albert A. Grinnell paper money sale of 1946, which included many unique specimens—this, being the flower of them all.

A complete set of nine pieces, of every denomination issued of the Federal Reserve Notes these are engravers proofs and were issued by the Treasury Department. They are mounted on special cardboard frames and carefully bound on all sides. These specimens, both abverse and reverse, are printed on white cardboard and have the characteristics of the regular notes. They are all stamped "Sample" and understood to have no negotiable value.

These notes have a hypothetical value of $16,685.00. The detail and color is even more sharp than the circulated issue. Discription cannot truly do them justice.

It must have been difficult to part with such a cherished treasure, but this unique prize can again bring joy and satisfaction to the heart of another collector.

We must frankly admit the difficulty in placing an estimated value on such an extreme rarity, but in our humble opinion this choice group of handsome specimens should realize in excess of $10,000.00

We will adjourn for lunch.
Next Session will begin at 1:15.

time, and until the buffalo became extinct, it was much the habit of wealthy foreigners to name the plains in spring of this noble game and anything else that afforded them amusement and novelty. When we struck the buffalo region these hunters broke away from us and probably had a successful hunt. We met with several parties of professional hunters, that is those who are killing the buffalo for their hides. These were rough uncouth fellows accustomed to such work, dirty, ragged, dirty and profane. They had plenty of mules or Indian ponies for their work, and two or three

GENERAL ORDERS, No. 139.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, Sept. 24, 1862.

The following Proclamation by the President is published for the information and government of the Army and all concerned:

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

A PROCLAMATION.

I, ABRAHAM LINCOLN, President of the United States of America, and Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy thereof, do hereby proclaim and declare that hereafter, as heretofore, the war will be prosecuted for the object of practically restoring the constitutional relation between the United States and each of the States, and the people thereof, in which States that relation is or may be suspended or disturbed.

That it is my purpose, upon the next meeting of Congress, to again recommend the adoption of a practical measure tendering pecuniary aid to the free acceptance or rejection of all Slave States, so called, the people whereof may not then be in rebellion against the United States, and which States may then have voluntarily adopted, or thereafter may voluntarily adopt, immediate or gradual abolishment of slavery within their respective limits; and that the effort to colonize persons of African descent, with their consent, upon this continent or elsewhere, with the previously obtained consent of the governments existing there, will be continued.

That on the first day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, all persons held as slaves within any State or designated part of a State, the people whereof shall then be in rebellion against the United States, shall be then, thenceforward, and forever free; and the Executive Government of the United States, including the military and naval authority thereof, will recognise and maintain the freedom of such persons, and will do no act or acts to repress such persons, or any of them, in any efforts they may make for their actual freedom.

That the Executive will, on the first day of January aforesaid, by proclamation, designate the States, and parts of States, if any, in which the people thereof respectively shall then be in rebellion against the United States; and the fact that any State, or the people thereof, shall on that day be in good faith represented in the Congress of the United States, by members chosen thereto at elections wherein a majority of the qualified voters of such State shall have participated, shall, in the absence of strong countervailing testimony, be deemed conclusive evidence that such State, and the people thereof, are not then in rebellion against the United States.

That attention is hereby called to an act of Congress entitled "An act to make an additional Article of War," approved March 13, 1862, and which act is in the words and figure following:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That hereafter the following shall be promulgated as an additional article of war for the government of the Army of the United States, and shall be obeyed and observed as such:

"ARTICLE —. All officers or persons in the military or naval service of the United States are prohibited from employing any of the forces under their respective commands for the purpose of returning fugitives from service or labor who may have escaped from any persons to whom such service or labor is claimed to be due; and any officer who shall be found guilty by a court-martial of violating this article, shall be dismissed from the service.

"SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That this act shall take effect from and after its passage."

Also, to the ninth and tenth sections of an act entitled "An act to suppress insurrection, to punish treason and rebellion, to seize and confiscate property of rebels, and for other purposes," approved July 17, 1862, and which sections are in the words and figures following:

"SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That all slaves of persons who shall hereafter be engaged in rebellion against the government of the United States, or who shall in any way give aid or comfort thereto, escaping from such persons and taking refuge within the lines of the army; and all slaves captured from such persons, or deserted by them and coming under the control of the government of the United States; and all slaves of such persons found on [or] being within any place occupied by rebel forces and afterwards occupied by the forces of the United States, shall be deemed captives of war, and shall be forever free of their servitude, and not again held as slaves.

"SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That no slave escaping into any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, from any other State, shall be delivered up, or in any way impeded or hindered of his liberty, except for crime, or some offense against the laws, unless the person claiming said fugitive shall first make oath that the person to whom the labor or service of such fugitive is alleged to be due is his lawful owner, and has not borne arms against the United States in the present rebellion, nor in any way given aid and comfort thereto; and no person engaged in the military or naval service of the United States shall, under any pretence whatever, assume to decide on the validity of the claim of any person to the service or labor of any other person, or surrender up any such person to the claimant, on pain of being dismissed from the service."

And I do hereby enjoin upon and order all persons engaged in the military and naval service of the United States to observe, obey, and enforce, within their respective spheres of service, the act and sections above recited.

And the Executive will in due time recommend that all citizens of the United States who shall have remained loyal thereto throughout the rebellion shall (upon the restoration of the constitutional relation between the United States and their respective States and people, if that relation shall have been suspended or disturbed) be compensated for all losses by acts of the United States, including the loss of slaves.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this twenty-second day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, and of the independence of the United States the eighty-seventh.

[SEAL.]

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.
